

Application Fee

The non-refundable, non-transferrable $50 application fee must be paid before an application can be processed. An application can be deferred to a future quarter one time without payment of another application fee. If the application is deferred again, the application fee must be paid with each deferral request.

The application fee must be paid online. Two payment providers are available:

- For applicants using a non-U.S. credit card or bank, payment should be made via Flywire: <https://intlseattlecolleges.flywire.com>. Flywire will provide several online payment options, which may include credit/debit card, bank transfer, or other private payment options. Availability of options will vary depending on the country.
- For applicants using a U.S. bank card, payment should be made via Cybersource: <https://intl.seattlecolleges.edu/payment/>.

Payment of the $50 application fee is part of the application process. Applicants will be asked to enter the transaction id/confirmation number for their payment with their online admission application.

Applicants who are unable to pay using Flywire or Cybersource should contact the International Admissions Office at IntlAdmissions@seattlecolleges.edu for guidance.
