

Application Fee

The non-refundable, non-transferrable $50 application fee must be paid before an application can be processed. An application can be deferred to a future quarter one time without payment of another application fee. If the application is deferred again, the application fee must be paid with each deferral request.

The application fee must be paid online with Flywire via the following link: <https://seattlecolleges.flywire.com>. Once on the payment portal homepage, select the “Fees for Applicants” option to make your payment.

Flywire accepts payments made with U.S. credit cards. In addition, Flywire provides non-U.S. payment options, which may include credit/debit card, bank transfer, or other private payment options. Availability of non-U.S. payment options will vary depending on the country.

Payment of the $50 application fee is part of the application process. Applicants will be asked to enter the transaction id/confirmation number for their payment with their online admission application.

Flywire is a third-party website contracting with Seattle Colleges to process international application fee payments. Questions about submitting or tracking payments with Flywire can be addressed to Flywire Support.

Applicants who are unable to pay using Flywire should contact the International Admissions Office at IntlAdmissions@seattlecolleges.edu for further guidance.