ABOUT NORTH

North Seattle College offers a unique mix of both city life and natural beauty. Student artwork, a community garden, and environmentally-protected wetlands surround classroom buildings. Community involvement helps many students develop a close connection to and affinity for Seattle as both a city and a home. Engaging in political movements and discussions or volunteering at non-profit organizations are just some of the ways students can get involved.

A public transit center is within walking distance and offers frequent, reliable bus service across the city and the region. North is connected by subway to downtown, the University of Washington, and Seattle-Tacoma International Airport.

North is an ideal destination for students who enjoy a mix of both city life and slower-paced living.
